

Financial Literacy

Financial Literacy is perhaps the most important skill we can learn and apply in our lifetime. The ability to budget, plan, save and be wise with our money can make a difference in our overall quality of life.

Even at a young age, it is time to start learning about financial literacy and money management. Even young students may get an allowance or earn money through babysitting, mowing lawns, gifts, etc. It is important to make the most of your money and to live within your budget.

Check out this great video on Financial Literacy, you will be glad you did! The earlier we begin to understand financial literacy the better.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=4j2emMn7Ual>

If you are looking to enroll in post-secondary education, check out this money management checklist for college students:

<https://studentaid.gov/sites/default/files/money-management-checklist.pdf>